

WOODNEATH PRESS DECLARATION OF COPYRIGHT

STORY CENTER ANTHOLOGY 2022

THE AUTHOR’S RETENTION OF COPYRIGHT:

The author is the sole copyright owner of the work and retains all rights to the work except for those expressly granted to Woodneath Press in this agreement. The work is defined as the author’s individual contribution and does not refer to the anthology as a whole. The author continues to be the sole owner of his or her own work, even after its publication in this anthology. Woodneath Press does not limit the author’s right to publish this work in any other format.

THE PUBLISHER’S RETENTION OF COLLECTIVE COPYRIGHT:

Woodneath Press is the sole copyright owner of the anthology as a collective work and retains all rights to the collective work therein. The collective work is defined as the complete anthology and does not refer to the author’s individual work. The collective work copyright will not limit or prevent the author’s rights to publish or profit from the work separate from the anthology except to the limited extent provided in this agreement.

ROYALTIES:

The author will not be paid royalties for any sales of this book.

AUTHOR COPIES:

The author will receive one (1) printed copy of the anthology at no charge. The author can purchase additional copies from Woodneath Press/The Story Center at production cost.

EDITING:

The Story Center will contract a copyeditor for this anthology. The Story Center staff will work directly with the copyeditor to secure quality. The author will not be in contact with the copyeditor. The author will be contacted by The Story Center should a question arise regarding to the work.
